

Valley MedPsych

Valley MedPsych is seeking one adult or lifespan clinical neuropsychologist to join our team in a busy private practice in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia. Our office is in Fishersville, Virginia, within a brief driving distance of James Madison University, Charlottesville, the University of Virginia community, and multiple other smaller universities. Our practice serves adults across the age spectrum for a broad range of referrals for differential diagnosis and clarification of treatment/rehabilitative needs for conditions such as concussion/TBI, cerebrovascular disease, memory loss/neurodegenerative conditions, ADHD, and other cognitive questions and concerns (such as clarification of intellectual disability issues). Additionally, we are hoping to expand in providing pediatric neuropsychological services. There is outstanding potential for continuing significant growth of this practice, with high demand for our services. Income potential is limited only by how busy the incoming neuropsychologist would prefer to be as an independent contractor.

We use a cloud-based EMR for scheduling, storage, and exchange of clinical documentation and billing. The neuropsychologist would be an independent contractor with a percentage of collections paid to the practice. All scheduling is done by the practice, with reminder calls and emails. Our practice manager is experienced and very knowledgeable, efficient, and effective in obtaining maximum reimbursement for services provided. Dr. Gerald Showalter, the founder and previous owner of Valley Medpsych, built a very solid reputation in the area among physician referral sources with most of our referrals coming from Neurology, Psychiatry, and Family Medicine/Primary Care.

As an independent contractor, pay would be percentage based, which could vary with number of patients seen weekly as well as use of a psychometrist or not. Other benefits may be available as well. If the opportunity to develop an outstanding private practice career in neuropsychology in a scenic, historic, friendly, and accommodating area of the country is of interest to you, please email a CV and cover letter to drjmouras@vmedpsych.com. Please feel free to reach me also for any questions and/or to discuss the opportunity.
